

ABSTRACT

A system for designing roads according to the present invention has terminal devices, which has a function of a client, for inputting information of design conditions and/or personal information of users, a server of designing roads, which has a function of a server, for offering a service for designing roads on the basis of the information of design conditions and the personal information, a computer network such as the internet for linking each of the terminal devices to the server, facsimile devices, which are installed on the side of clients, for receiving and outputting results from the server, and a communication line network for linking the facsimile devices to the server.